HISTORY OF NEWSLETTERS

Ever wondered how the newsletters you receive today got their start?

It all began centuries ago, during the Roman Empire, when handwritten bulletins were posted in public places to inform citizens about daily events. Fast forward to the 16th century, when the printing press revolutionized communication, it brought news from Europe to eager readers which later took off on the 17th century. Even during the English Civil War, newsletters were used as propaganda tools. Jumping ahead to the 20th century, newsletters evolved alongside technology. Now, in the digital age, newsletters have experienced a renaissance. With the rise of email and social media, anyone can create and distribute their own newsletters, covering topics from fashion to finance to fandoms.

So, next time you receive your latest school newsletter, remember the rich history behind this humble yet powerful form of communication. Who knows? May be one day, you'll be the one crafting the headlines for readers around the world.

STORY WRITING

THE DOG THAT SAVED THE KIDS

Once upon a time there was a village called Tuileng. In that village there were five friends namely – Thangpu, Lialian, Sonpi, Lalboi and Khakhai. They used to play in the forest and went for swimming in the river during their holidays. One day after they finished their half-yearly exam, they went to the forest for hunting birds, to climb the trees and eat wild fruits available during the summer season. One of them brought his dog. Its name was Jacky. After sometimes they reached the place where they were supposed to be.

They stayed there for about an hour and caught a handful of birds. Later they decided to go and eat jackfruits near the gorge and took off to that place. Lialian and Thangpu climbed up the tree and started plucking the jackfruits. What they didn’t know about the gorge was that, a mother bear and cub was living there.

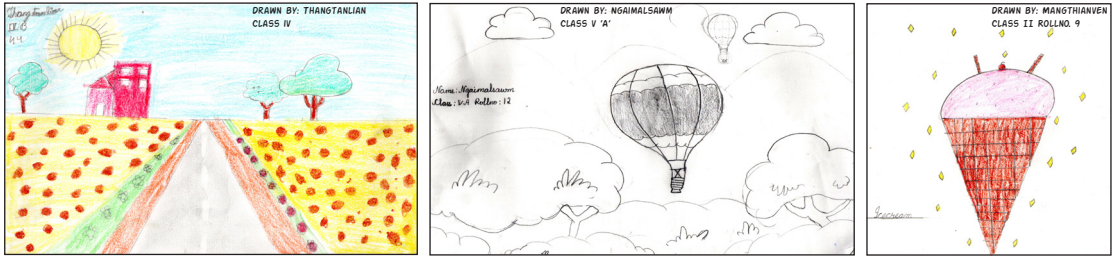

While on the tree, Lialian saw a cub the bear cub and told his friends. They climbed down the trees slowly, they were really happy to see a bear cub because it was their first time and they also found it cute. Then Jacky started barking towards the cub’s direction. Without much warning, the mother bear jumped out of the bush. Then, all the kids started running towards their home.

Meanwhile, Jacky started fighting with bear, the dog had bitten the bear’s neck and then was flipped away by the bear some and met with the kids. The kids explained everything to him. The man went to the place where the bear and the dog were fighting. After a few minutes, there was a sound of gunshot and that killed the bear. Unfortunately the dog succumbed his injuries and died on the spot. It was only because of the dog that the kids were alive. They were very thankful to the dog.
